Start the day with a thought that holds sweetness within. As the perfume is held in the rose, For the day that with beautiful thoughts may begin. Holds its beauty all through till its close. Here are sunshine and song, here are laughter and light, Here are bickens for worry and fear— For the happiness held till the hush of the night. Leaves a blessing that glows with good cheer—Selected.

Entire Smith Reynold's Share of Tobacco Fortune Claimed

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., (AP)—Libby Holman Reynolds' baby son, Christopher, laid claim Thursday to the entire $25,000,000 slice of the Reynolds tobacco fortune which was held in trust for his father, Smith Reynolds.

Acting as "next friend" of the infant Christopher, who was born six months after his father's death from a pistol wound, on July 6, 1932, R. C. Vaughn filed an interpleur in the pending litigation over distribution of the trust fund and asked that Christopher be declared the sole beneficiary and devisee.

priced goods for the first time since 1929. A surplus is evident in public spending, and the surplus is going toward purchase of quality rather than quantity. Not only are staples being replenished by the average family, but seasonal and novelty articles are moving actively.

Hitt's Brown-Bitt Shoe store: Ten months of 1934 show a 25 per cent increase over 1933. Established in 1932, this store is making a new peak in 1934. Customers are buying a better grade of shoes. Mr. Hitt reports a temporary lull in November, due mainly to the prevailing fair weather. Rain and severe weather have an important effect on the shoe trade, and the setting in of winter storms is bound to be reflected in another sharp upturn in shoe sales before 1934 is out.

Ladies Specialty Shop: On 10 months 1934 volume is up 33 1/3 per cent from last year, which was up 10 per cent from the low of 1932.

Gift Shop, women's specialties: On 10 months 1934 shows an approximate increase of 20 to 25 per cent over last year, with the best volume in history.

Hardware

Hope Hardware: 1934 has shown a substantial increase over 1933, both in furniture and hardware sales.

McRae Hardware: 1934 shows between a 30 and 32 per cent increase over 1932. General line of hardware is moving well.

Duffie Hardware: Business just back to normal or better—back to the 1930 level of business. Very substantial increase over 1933 shown in 1934. General line moving very well.

Hope Furniture: A slight increase over 1933 shown in 1934.

Automobile Business

Motor sales in Arkansas wrote history for the whole United States last year when the state led the nation for a time in percentage of new car sales to total registrations.

The record has been maintained and improved this year according to a survey of the three automobile dealers who have been in business here continuously for the past ten years.

Hope Auto company (Ford): The dealer has delivered 228 cars on the first 10 months of 1934, topping the prior record of 201 in 1933. Deliveries fell to 91 in 1932, were 96 in 1932, and rose to 147 in 1933 giving an increase of 44 per cent for 1934 over last year, with two more months to go.

Young Chevrolet company: Chevrolet sales on the first 10 months of 1934 show an increase of 17 per cent over 1933, and a gain of 130 per cent over 1932. E. P. Young estimates the final showing of 1934 as 25 per cent better than last year. He points out that conditions in the East caused a shortage of new Chevrolets last spring, making 1934 weak at a time when 1933 was strong. But there is plenty of stock available this fall, as against a curtailment last fall, making the close of 1934 strong where 1933 was weak.

B. R. Hamm Motor company (Dodge and Plymouth): Total sale of car units this year, due in part to the low-

It ought to mean the same thing to be a church member and to be a Christian, but, unfortunately as everyone recognizes, the two are not identical.

I suppose it might be said that the fact that one is a church member indicates the purpose to be a Christian or a general alliance with Christianity.

One young woman who was asked if she were a Christian replied that she was, but it was found that she meant that she was a Christian as distinguished from a pagan or a Mohammedan.

It did not mean that Christian truth and Christian ideals had taken any very deep root in her heart or life.

Church membership may be a very formal thing. To be a Christian is a very real thing. We ought, of course, to distinguish between sincerity of purpose in a very imperfect character and high fidelity to the ideal.

We must recognize that many people who are weak or immature in their Christian lives, are nevertheless sincere and right-minded. They need to be educated and guided in the Christian way, an they need to grow in grace in Christ.

It is instructive to remember that early church members were not ideal in every respect. Paul found it necessary to rebuke many of the immorality of their practices and for their evil tempers.

And in the inner circle of disciples, before the church had been formally organized, Jesus complained more than once of the blindness of his disciples and of their failure to understand or manifest his simple teaching concerning love and brotherhood.

Nevertheless, the ideal of church membership would be a true Christian as well. Jesus gives a beautiful picture of the character and privilege of the true disciple in his reference to Christians as the "salt of the earth" and the "light of the world."

The world today still needs those who will let their light so shine before men that others may see their good works and glorify God.

We shall hardly expect that in the modern world church members and Christians are likely to take the cepts of the gospel so literally that they shall follow the example of the early Christians in selling their possessions and goods and holding things in common.

It is a debatable issue in a practical world whether that would be the best way of attaining the results to be sought in providing for the needs of every man. At the same time, one must recognize that not even communism can lay a higher obligation upon man than is laid by the law of Christian love and brotherhood.

After all, our religion is tested by the measure of our responsibility for one another, and by the manifestation of love and sympathy in practical ways.

It is doubtful how much we can do by law and governmental agencies to bring about the ideal association of man with man. At any rate, it is true that beneath all laws and governmental action there must be in a true society the impulses of love and helpfulness.

It is only as men accept and share the common life and responsibilities that society can attain a high degree of welfare.

Perhaps Uncle Sam wouldn't hesitate about buying more dirigibles if he had a few Ecklers to operate them.

I felt better after I took my first bottle, so kept on taking it as I felt such a need of strength, and it helped me so much."

FAMOUS FOOTBALL FEATS!
THE longest punt in history? It was one of 115 yards, made by Harry Rabenhorst, present basketball and baseball coach at Louisiana State, when he played for little Wake Forest in 1919.
The punt came during Wake Forest's annual classic with North Carolina State, Thanksgiving Day.
North Carolina had rushed the ball to Wake Forest's six-inch line, but lost it on downs. Rabenhorst then dropped 10 yards behind his own goal line and booted a tremendous spiral that carried 85 yards in the air—far over the head of Gurley, State safety man, on the 40-yard line.
The ball continued to roll toward the goal and, five yards over the line, Johnson, Wake Forest end, fell on it for a touchdown.

American Chemist Gets Nobel Prize

Professor Urey, of Columbia, Discovered "Heavy Water"

NEW YORK—(P)—Dr. Harold C. Urey was awarded the 1934 Nobel prize in chemistry, Thursday for the chemical discovery which the public knows under the name of "heavy water."

The young scientist is professor of chemistry at Columbia University.

"Heavy water," the popular name for Dr. Urey's discovery, is made of heavy hydrogen, or hydrogen atoms twice as heavy as the hydrogen known. It was this discovery and isolation of heavy hydrogen atoms, technically called "isotopes," that won recognition for Dr. Urey at the hands of the Nobel board.

An "isotope" is an off-weight atom. That is, all atoms of the 92 known chemical elements have standard weights. Mixed with many, perhaps all of them, are off-weight atoms which are either lighter or heavier than standard.

Until shortly before Dr. Urey's discovery, it was almost undreamed that there could be an off-weight hydrogen atom. The standard weight of hydrogen, lightest of all elements, was only one. Any off-weight hydrogen or "isotope" had to be two. Dr. Urey was able to prove, mathematically, the existence of this double weight atom.

Heavy hydrogen makes a different substance out of every compound where it is substituted for ordinary hydrogen.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

—BY DAN THOMAS—

Censorship Reawakens Public Desire For Romance

While Dan Thomas, NEA Hollywood correspondent, is away on vacation, 12 of the leading screen stars have consented to pinch-hit for him. Norma Shearer leads off with her first public declaration about the recent censorship campaign, much of which revolved about the parts she took in films.

By NORMA SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.—There is much to be said on the side of control of motion pictures. While, strictly speaking, I am against censorship, a certain control often prevents vulgarity and bad taste from spoiling a great form of art and entertainment.

However, the danger of motion picture censorship is that such a movement runs the risk of being carried too far, falling into the hands of fanatics and becoming unfair, impractical and destructive.

I think every man knows how to run his own business, or should, and if he doesn't he'll soon be out of it. The public attends to that.

But I do think that this censorship movement, apart from making the picture business conscious of some bad taste used unnecessarily on the screen, has done one really important thing and that is to reawaken in the mind of the public the desire for romance and idealism in their entertainment.

And if that is given them, and is sincerely done, you'll find a glow and a little tear in the eye of even that tough guy when he walks out of the theater—he's usually the one that goes for it.

But great romantic stories are hard to find. They must be fundamentally right and sound. They must have dramatic suspense as well as charm—the latter a subtle potion.

As a matter of fact, finding or creating suitable material for the screen is one of the great problems of the picture business, chiefly for two reasons: because stories told on the screen must have a universal appeal, and because such a great number of stories are needed for the screen each year, to enable producers to turn out the pictures they are obligated to make.

Although this business has some of the greatest literary talent in the world, it has to turn to books and plays constantly to keep up the supply with the demand. Once in awhile we are fortunate enough to find something that is not only a great piece of writing but also a great piece of entertainment, like "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

In my mind this is one of the greatest romances that ever lived, played against the highly dramatic background of parental tyranny, opposition and the defeating problem of ill health. It appealed to me particularly, because it is the story of the triumph of love over hate, of great strength out of weakness, of the fight for freedom.

Even if the romance hadn't been about two of the world's greatest poets, what is more thrilling than the idea of love sweeping into Elizabeth Barrett's room, where she had languished as an invalid for many years—love, as Robert Browning expressed it, that "makes you feel new life tingling and prickling up your fingers and arms, up into your heart and brain"—love that gave Elizabeth the strength to lift herself from her couch for the first time in years and carried her flatteringly over to the window to catch one more glance of her lover—love that gave her the courage to defy her cruel and tyrannical father and all the traditions of his household, and flee from the protection of its solemn walls to seek adventure and sunshine with Robert Browning?

I think the lines as written by the playwright, Mr. Besier, when Elizabeth first declares her love for Robert Browning, are as beautiful as any lines I have ever been given to say on the screen.

They are: "I do want to live, but only because of you—the sight of your face and the sound of your voice and the touch of your hand. Because of you the air once more is sweet to breathe and all the world is good and green again."

The late 1920s were not the golden age of advertising. That was the brass age. The golden age is just ahead of us.—Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant.

Kansas Paper Has New Court Policy

Independence Reporter Signs Up Pledges, Suppresses News

INDEPENDENCE, Kan.—(P)—The Independence Reporter, confronted with an occasional request that it keep out of print the name of a resident who had drunk too heavily and been arrested, has solved the matter in a unique way.

The Reporter agrees to the request but it demands that a pledge of future sobriety be signed. In a small town where everyone knows his neighbors, the chronicling of police court news has its peculiar embarrassments, and Charles Spencer, editor, reports the plan has worked well.

When it is a case of a first offender, Spencer agrees to withhold the story from print if the individual will sign a pledge in which he agrees to do his best to keep away from liquor in the future, and in which he agrees to the right of the paper to publish the fact if he "breaks over" again.

There have been more than 100 signers of the pledge, according to Spencer, and only three have broken it.

"Unfortunately," added Spencer, "one of the three was a rather important advertiser."

The pledge follows: "The undersigned, having been arrested for drunkenness, and fined in the police court of Independence, wishes to have no mention made of the incident in the Daily Reporter.

"In case no mention is made of this incident we promise to do our best to leave liquor alone, and in event we do not and we get into police court again for reason of 'breaking over,' then the Reporter has our consent in advance to publish a news story concerning the same, as well as to mention the particulars of the case which caused us to sign this pledge, and likewise the fact that we signed it."

Chop Dinner Need Not Always Come Out of the Frying Pan; Seasonings Add Variety

BY MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Staff Service Writer

A chop-suey dinner needn't stick to the hackneyed fried meat-baked potato-lettuce salad motif unless you insist.

There are two ways to accomplish interesting dishes without extra strain on the food budget. One is to have a complete assortment of seasonings on hand and use them; the other is to try unusual methods of cooking.

A pinch of this and a sprinkle of that works wonders with everyday foods and you don't have to overload with the condiments either.

Again if we see food that usually is served on a platter come to the table in a baking dish, our interest is aroused. Moreover, meat baked with a clever seasoning has an entirely different flavor from the fried or even broiled.

For another variation serve well-seasoned broiled rice with pork chops instead of potatoes, and parsnips—if you like parsnips.

A crisp salad of cabbage and green pepper and an apple dessert with thin cream rounds out a fine pork dinner that's different, yet it offers no expensive, out of the season foods.

Baked Pork Chops

Six Pork chops, 2 cups tiny white onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, yolks 2 eggs, 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup coarse buttered crumbs.

Peel onions and cook in butter over a slow fire until soft and a pale straw color. Put in a shallow baking dish. Beat yolks of eggs with lemon juice, parsley, salt and pepper and pour over onions. Cover with chops lightly seasoned with salt and pepper. Sprinkle thickly with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until well browned and very tender. It will take about 1 hour.

Apple Rollapolla

Two cups flour, 4 tablespoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter or butter substitute, milk, 4 apples, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon butter.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in shortening and when well blended cut in milk to make a soft dough. Roll out to 1/2 inch thickness on a floured board and covered generously with coarsely chopped apples. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and dot with bits of butter. Roll up like a jelly roll and bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) Cut in slices and serve warm with sugar and cream.
